Imperial Pacific International (CNMI) LLC,

Case No. 1:24-cv-00001

Plaintiff,

DECISION AND ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFF'S SECOND
EMERGENCY MOTION FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER

Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Arnold Palacios, governor of CNMI, in his official and personal capacities; Edward C. Deleon Guerrero, Chairman of CCC, in his official and personal capacities; Rafael S. Demapan, Vice Chairman of CCC, in his official and personal capacities; Mariano Taitano, Commissioner of CCC, in his official and personal capacities; Martin Mendiola, Commissioner of CCC, in his official and personal capacities; Ramon M. Dela Cruz, Commissioner of CCC, in his official and personal capacities; Andrew Yeom, Executive Director of CCC, in his official and personal capacities;

Defendants.

On February 23, 2024, Plaintiff Imperial Pacific International (CNMI), LLC ("IPI"), brought this civil action against Defendants Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands ("CNMI"), Governor Arnold Palacios, Commonwealth Casino Commission ("CCC" or "Commission") Chairman Edward Deleon Guerrero, CCC Vice Chairman Rafael Demapan, CCC Commissioner Mariano Taitano, CCC Commissioner Martin Mendiola, CCC Commissioner

1 Ramon Dela Cruz, and CCC Executive Director Andrew Yeom in their official and personal
2 capacities (collectively, “Defendants”). (Compl., ECF No. 1.) Three days later, IPI filed its first
3 motion for a temporary restraining order restraining Defendants from conducting a revocation
4 hearing on February 28, 2024, on IPI’s casino license (“TRO”). (First TRO Mot., ECF No. 2.)
5 After reviewing the parties’ filings and a hearing on the motion, the Court denied IPI’s first motion
6 for a TRO. (Mins, ECF No. 8; Mem. Decision, ECF No. 9.)

8 IPI filed its second motion for a TRO on March 27, 2024, requesting the Court to restrain
9 Chairman Guerrero, Chairman Demapan, Commissioner Dela Cruz, Commissioner Taitano, and 10 Commissioner Mendiola from deliberating and voting on the charges against IPI that were the 11 subject of the revocation hearing on February 28, 2024. (Pl.’s Points & Authorities 5, ECF No. 23-
12 1.) The Court has reviewed IPI’s filings in support of its motion for a second TRO (ECF Nos. 23
13 -24-11), Defendant’s Oppositions (ECF Nos. 27-30), and IPI’s Reply (ECF No. 31). The Court
14 finds that IPI has failed to meet its burden and DENIES IPI’s second motion for a TRO as detailed 15 herein.

20 I. BACKGROUND

21 In IPI’s second motion for a TRO, there are few new facts from those presented in IPI’s
22 first motion for a TRO that are relevant to this Court’s analysis. Further, the Court previously 23 identified the background relevant to IPI’s first motion for a TRO, which is adopted herein. (Mem.
24 Decision 1-5.) The Court further identifies new facts IPI presents below.
25
26
27
28

1 IPI clarifies who the decisionmakers are for the revocation of IPI's casino license, which
2 includes Chairman Guerrero and Commissioners Demapan, Cruz, Taitano, and Mendiola. (Pl.'s
3 Points & Authorities 11-12.)

5 At the February 28, 2024, revocation hearing, IPI made several motions to disqualify the 6 hearing commissioners. (Id. at 12.) Also, "[a]fter the adjournment of the revocation hearing, on 7 the agenda for the monthly meeting of CCC, which is scheduled to take place on March 28, 2024,
8 CCC plans to begin to deliberate and render decision for the revocation hearing on April 2, 2024."
9 (Id. at 13.)

11
12 On April 1, 2024, the Court issued an order to show cause why emergency relief was 13 required by April 2, 2024, and the Commissioner Defendants to confirm the date of deliberation
14 and voting on the revocation hearing. (Order Show Cause, ECF No. 33.) IPI confirmed that if the 15 deliberation and voting date was moved, there was not a need to grant relief by April 2, 2024. (Pl.'s 16 Response, ECF No. 34.) Commissioner Defendants confirmed that the deliberation and voting by
17 the CCC was moved to April 9, 2024. (Def.'s Response Order Show Cause, ECF No. 35.)

18 19 20 II. LEGAL STANDARD

22 The Court has previously outlined the standard for a TRO in its memorandum decision.
23 (Mem. Decision 5-6.) However, the Court again states the standard herein. Federal Rule of Civil 24 Procedure 65 governs TROs. "The standard for issuing a TRO is the same as that for issuing a 25 preliminary injunction" Blain v. Cal. Dep't of Transp., 616 F. Supp. 3d 952, 956 (N.D. Cal.
26 2022). A "preliminary injunction is not a preliminary adjudication on the merits, but a device for 27
28

1 preserving the status quo and preventing the irreparable loss of rights before judgment.” Textile
2 Unlimited, Inc. v. A..BMH & Co., 240 F.3d 781, 786 (9th Cir. 2001). “[It] is an extraordinary
3 remedy never awarded as of right.” Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 24 (2008)
4 (citing Munaf v. Geren, 553 U.S. 674, 689 (2008)). Courts apply a four-factor test to determine
5 whether to grant a preliminary injunction or TRO. “A plaintiff seeking a preliminary injunction
6 must establish that he is likely to succeed on the merits, that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm
7 in the absence of preliminary relief, that the balance of equities tips in his favor, and that an 8 injunction is in the public interest.” Id. at 20. This is the same for TROs. Blain, 616 F. Supp. 3d at 9 956.

12
13 “Alternatively, the court may issue a preliminary injunction if the plaintiff demonstrates 14 that ‘serious questions going to the merits’ have been raised and ‘the balance of hardships tips
15 sharply in the plaintiff’s favor’ in addition to satisfying the other Winter factors.” Cmmw. Utils.
16 Corp. v. Johnson, 218 F. Supp. 3d 1136, 1142 (D. N. Mar. I. 2016) (citing All. for the Wild Rockies 17 v. Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127, 1134-35 (9th Cir. 2011)). This approach is commonly called the 18 “serious questions test”: “‘serious questions going to the merits’ and a balance of hardships that 19 tips sharply towards the plaintiff can support issuance of a preliminary injunction, so long as the 20 plaintiff also shows that there is a likelihood of irreparable injury and that the injunction is in the 21 public interest.” Id. at 1135. “Serious questions” are questions that “cannot be resolved one way
22 or the other at the hearing on the injunction and as to which the court perceives a need to preserve
23 the status quo lest one side prevent resolution of the questions . . . by altering the status quo.”
25
26
27
28

1 Gilder v. PGA Tour, Inc., 936 F.2d 417, 422 (9th Cir. 1991) (quoting Republic of the Philippines
2 v. Marcos, 862 F.2d 1355, 1362 (9th Cir. 1988) (en banc)). Serious questions “need not promise a
3 certainty of success, nor even present a probability of success, but must involve a ‘fair chance of 4 success on the merits.’” Id. (quoting Nat’l Wildlife Fed’n v. Coston, 773 F.2d 1513, 1517 (9th Cir.
5 1985)).

8 III. DISCUSSION

9 In addressing the Winter factors, the Court focuses on IPI’s due process cause of action as 10 that is the focus of IPI’s second motion for a TRO.
11

12 There are two main categories of due process challenges that focus on structural bias. Alpha
13 Epsilon Phi Tau Chapter Hous. Ass’n v. City of Berkeley, 114 F.3d 840, 844 (9th Cir. 1997). Due 14 process is violated if decisionmakers have a “‘direct, personal, substantial pecuniary interest’ in 15 the proceedings.” Id. (citing Tumey v. Ohio, 273 U.S. 510, 523 (1927)). Even if decisionmakers 16 do not stand to gain personally, “due process may also be offended where the decisionmaker,
17 because of his institutional responsibilities, would have ‘so strong a motive’ to rule in a way that 18 would aid the institution.” Id. (citing Tumey, 273 U.S. at 532).
19
20

22 IPI’s due process claim is premised on their argument that “Defendants have a direct,
23 substantial, arguably pecuniary interest in finding IPI in violation of the CLA, given the fact that
24 CCC is funded exclusively by the regulatory fees that are ordered to be paid by IPI and its affiliates
25 to the CCC.” (Compl. ¶ 63.) Additionally, IPI argues that 26
27
28

1 [e]ven for matters that are outside the scope of the CLA, CCC has a direct,
2 substantial, arguably personal, pecuniary interest in finding IPI in violation of 3 the CCC Rules and Regulation, given the fact that the finding of violation would 4 directly result in fines and penalties payable to CCC and give CCC additional leverages over IPI that were not available to CCC under the CLA.

5 (Id. ¶ 64.)

6 In IPI's second motion for a TRO, IPI contends that it has a strong likelihood of success
7 on the merits for its due process cause of action because Chairman Guerrero and Hearing
8 Commissioners Demapan, Cruz, Taitano, and Songao have a "direct, substantial, arguably
9 personal, pecuniary interest[] in the outcome of the revocation hearing." (Pl.'s Points & Authorities
10 18.) IPI supports this contention through stating a number of issues it raised at its revocation
11 hearing including: a force majeure defense, the executive director's lack of evidence to substantiate
12 a charge against IPI, the unconstitutionality of the regulatory fee statute, and that suspension of its 13 license would excuse payment of the regulatory fee under the CLA. (Id. at 19.) IPI asserts that its 14 due process rights to an impartial and disinterested trier of fact are violated because pursuant to 4
15 CMC § 2309 (a), the CCC derives all its revenue from the annual regulatory fee that IPI challenges
16 as unconstitutional. (Id. at 19.)

17 IPI seeks a TRO against Edward C. Deleon Guerrero, Chairman of CCC; Rafael S.
18 Demapan, Vice and Acting Chairman of CCC; Ramon M. Dela Cruz, Commissioner and Secretary
19 of CCC; Mariano Taitano, Commissioner and Treasurer of CCC; and Martin T. Mendiola,
20 Commissioner and Public Affairs of CCC. (Id. at 5.)

1 First, as to Chairman Guerrero, IPI does not specify what role Chairman Guerrero plays in
2 the deliberation and voting on the revocation hearing and therefore does not support this Court
3 restraining him from deliberation and voting on the revocation hearing. In fact, IPI states in its
4 second motion for a TRO that Chairman Guerrero did not act at the revocation hearing in a quasi-
5 judicial capacity and only participated as “citizen Guerrero.” (Id. at 5, 12.)

8 As to the other Defendants IPI requests the Court restrain Vice and Acting Chairman
9 Demapan and Commissioners Cruz, Taitano, and Mendiola from deliberating and voting on the 10 revocation hearing. (Id. at 5.)
11

12 To support IPI’s due process cause of action, IPI makes a series of contradicting arguments
13 regarding possible incentives and biases the CCC Commissioner’s may have when they are 14 deciding whether or not to revoke IPI’s casino license for IPI’s failure to pay the regulatory fee.
15

16 On one hand, IPI argues that the Commissioners that will deliberate and vote as to the 17 revocation of IPI’s casino license are biased because the “CCC itself is entirely funded from th[e]
18 annual regulatory fee from IPI and its affiliates.” (Id. at 6, 19.) However, IPI admits that it has 19 failed to pay the regulatory fee, along with other fees “for a few years.” (Id. at 7.) This indicates 20 that the CCC is not funded solely on IPI’s payment of the regulatory fee each year as the CCC has 21 continued to exist without IPI’s payments.

24 IPI then contends that “[b]ased upon information and belief, CCC is operating on funds
25 borrowed from CNMI treasury.” (Id. at 21.) IPI does not provide any support for this assertion.
26
27
28

1 Additionally, this assertion contradicts IPI's first argument for bias by the Commissioners because
2 if true, then the CCC may be funded through other means.

4 Finally, when IPI discusses that public interest is supported by the Court issuing a TRO,
5 IPI argues that the resumption of its business operations will increase CNMI's tax revenues and
6 allow IPI to pay fees due to the CNMI. (Id. at 27.) This indicates that IPI is not presently capable
7 of paying fees due to the CNMI unless it were able to resume operation. The Court finds that this
8 contradicts IPI's assertion that the Commissioner's would be incentivized to revoke IPI's casino
9 license as there would not be means for IPI to pay outstanding fees and penalties without 10 resumption of its operation.

13 Additionally, IPI is not clear of the roles the Commissioners play in the upcoming 14 deliberation and voting on the revocation hearing. For example, although IPI seeks the Court to 15 restrain Commissioner Mendiola from deliberating and voting on IPI's revocation hearing in its
16 second motion for a TRO (id. at 5), later in the same motion, IPI does not include Commissioner
17 Mendiola in its assertion that the four hearing commissioners have direct, substantial, arguably
18 personal pecuniary interest in the outcome of the revocation hearing (id. at 18). Instead, IPI
19 includes Commissioner Diego M. Songao who is not a named defendant, nor is IPI asking to enjoin
20 Commissioner Songao. (Id.)
21
23

24 Despite IPI's apparent issues in properly identifying the parties' roles in the deliberation
25 and voting on its revocation hearing, the Court hereafter addresses the likely success on the merits
26 of IPI's due process claim.
27
28

1 A court determines whether the doctrine of res judicata bars a suit by looking to the res
3 judicata rules of the state from which the original judgment arises. See Marrese v. Am. Acad. of 4 Orthopaedic Surgeons, 470 U.S. 373, 380 (1985). Under CNMI law, the Supreme Court of the 5 CNMI set forth the general rule of res judicata:

7 The rule provides that when a court of competent jurisdiction has entered a final 8 judgment on the merits of a cause of action, the parties to the suit and their 9 privies are thereafter bound “not only as to every matter which was offered and 10 received to sustain or defeat the claim or demand, but as to any other admissible 11 matter which might have been offered for that purpose.” Cromwell v. County of 12 Sac, 94 U.S. 351, 352 [24 L.Ed 195]. The judgment puts an end to the cause of 13 action, which cannot again be brought into litigation between the parties upon 14 any ground whatever, absent fraud or some other factor invalidating the 15 judgment.

17 Santos v. Santos, No. 90-041, 1992 WL 135876, at *48-49 (N. Mar. I. Mar. 25, 1992) (citing 18 Commissioner v. Sunnen, 333 U.S. 591, 597 (1948)).

19 Further, “[t]he res judicata effect of a prior judgment depends on the scope of the cause of 20 action in that suit.” Id. at 49 (citing Wright, Miller & Cooper, § 4406). Therefore, in defining the 21 claim or cause of action in the prior suit, the court focuses on what both might and should have 22 been advanced in the first litigation. Id. “Under res judicata, a final judgment on the merits of an 23 action precludes the parties or their privities from relitigating issues that were or could have been 24 raised in that action.” Id. (quoting Allen v. McCurry, 449 U.S. 90, 94 (1980)).

25 Here, IPI has previously appealed the CCC’s decision in Order No. 2021-002 in which the 26 CCC suspended IPI’s gaming license, ordered IPI to pay $18.65 million due under IPI’s annual 27
28

1 license and regulatory fee, and imposed an additional $6.6 million in penalties. (Pl.’s Points &
2 Authorities 8.) The CNMI Supreme Court ruled that the sanctions the CCC imposed against IPI for 3 Complaints 2020-003, 2020-004, and 2020-005 were proper. Commonwealth Casino Comm’n v.
4 Imperial Pac. Int’l (CNMI), LLC, No. 2022-SCC-0006-CIV, 2023 WL 5526679, at *13 (N. Mar. I.
5 Aug. 25, 2023). Of particular importance is Complaint 2020-003: “failure to maintain the required
6 cash or cash equivalents in a CNMI or United States bank” and Complaint 2020-005: “failure to 7 pay the Casino Regulatory Fee.” Id. at *1. In this prior CNMI case, IPI did not raise a due process
8 claim on the grounds stated in its Complaint in the present case nor in its second motion for a TRO.
9 Instead, IPI claimed the CCC violated its due process rights “by considering evidence outside the 10 record.” Id. at *12.

11
12 The CNMI Supreme Court decision constitutes a final judgment on the merits of an action.
13
14 Further, IPI is the same party that brought the case in the CNMI Supreme Court. Last, IPI could 15 have raised its due process claim it now contends in its Complaint and second motion for a TRO in 16 its earlier action in the CNMI Supreme Court—and IPI did in fact raise a due process claim on other
17 grounds. See id. For these reasons, the Court does not find IPI has met its burden that it will likely 18 be successful on the merits of its due process cause of action because of the res judicata effect under 19 CNMI law.

21 The Court does not address the likelihood of success on the merits for IPI’s contract
22 impairment cause of action because IPI alleges a new basis for its contract impairment cause of
25
26
27
28

1 action then that alleged in its Complaint, and the Court concludes that it is not properly before the
2 Court.

4 Finally, IPI now argues that public interest will be served through the issuance of a TRO
5 because of judicial economy and job creation. The Court previously addressed IPI's argument
6 regarding job creation and IPI has not provided any new support beyond IPI's speculation and
7 those who work for IPI. As to IPI's new argument that issuance of a TRO will support public
8 interest through judicial economy, the Court finds this argument lacks support due to the likelihood 9 of success on the merits of its due process cause of action for which IPI seeks its second TRO.

12 In the Court's memorandum decision, the Court found that IPI did not meet its burden to 13 demonstrate a likelihood of success on its due process cause of action, IPI would likely suffer
14 irreparable harm, the balancing of equities did not support issuance of a TRO, and the public
15 interest would not be served through the issuance of a TRO. (Mem. Decision 3-19.)
16

18 Because the Court previously found that IPI would suffer irreparable harm and no new 19 facts have arisen pertaining to this factor, the Court need not analyze that factor again herein. (Id.
20 at 16.) As explained above, the Court finds that IPI has again failed to meet its burden of likelihood 21 of success on the merits for its due process cause of action, nor has IPI established that the issuance
22 of this second TRO is in the public's best interest. Therefore, the Court finds that the balancing of 23 equities again does not support the issuance of a TRO.

IV. CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, the Court finds that IPI has not met its burden such that the Court denies its second emergency motion for a TRO.

IT IS SO ORDERED this 5th day of April 2024.
