THIS MATTER came before the court on August 7, 2003, for hearing of defendants' motion for summary judgment on plaintiff's claim for relief based on the Racketeering Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"), 18 U.S.C. §§ 1961 et seq. Plaintiff appeared by and through his attorney, William M. Fitzgerald; defendants Terada and Hyakumata (a Japanese corporation)

1 appeared by and through their attorneys, Eric S. Smith (who argued), H.
2 Douglas Galt (who argued), and Mark K. Williams; and, defendant Minoru Imai
3 appeared by and through his attorney, Perry B. Inos.

5 THE COURT, having considered the written and oral arguments of
7 counsel, rules as follows:

8 Summary Judgment Standard

10 Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure states, in part, that 11 judgment “shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to 12 interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show 13 that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is 14 entitled to judgment as a matter of law.”
15

17 The party seeking summary judgment always bears the initial 18 responsibility of informing the court of the basis for its motion and identifying 19 those portions of the matters on record which it believes demonstrate the 20 absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Celotex Corporation v. Catrett, 477
21 U.S. 317, 323, 106 S.Ct. 2548, 2553 (1986).
22
23

24 The non-moving party must set forth by affidavit or as otherwise 25 provided in Rule 56 specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue of 26

1 material fact for trial. Kaiser Cement Corp. v. Fischbach & Moore, Inc., 793
2 F.2d 1100, 1103-1104 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 107 S.Ct. 435 (1986).

4 The court must view the evidence in the light most favorable to the non-5 moving party; if direct evidence from both parties conflicts, summary judgment
6 must be denied. Matsushita Electrical Industrial Co., Ltd. v. Zenith Radio
7 Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 106 S.Ct. 1348 (1986). However, although a trial court
8 may not weigh conflicting versions of fact on a motion for summary judgment, 9 Baxter v. MCA, Inc., 812 F.2d 421, 424 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, William v. Baxter,
10 484 U.S. 954, 108 S.Ct. 346 (1987), citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477
11 U.S. 242, 250, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L.Ed.2d 202 (1986), and although all 12 inferences are drawn in favor of the non-moving party, United States v.
13 Diebold, Inc., 369 U.S. 654, 655, 82 S.Ct. 993 (1962), the non-moving party 14 “must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to 15 the material facts.” Matsushita Electrical, 475 U.S. at 586. The summary 16 judgment standard is the same as that for judgment as a matter of law under 17 Fed.R.Civ.P. 50(a): whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to 18 require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must 19 prevail as a matter of law. Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Stanewich, 142 F.3d 1145, 1149

2 252, 106 S.Ct. at 2511-12 (1986). If the factual context makes the non-moving 3 party's claim implausible, then that party must come forward with more
4 persuasive evidence than otherwise would be necessary to show that there is a
5 genuine issue for trial. See Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp.,

9 RICO Allegations in the Complaint

10

11 In the first amended complaint, plaintiff alleges that all defendants
12 engaged in a pattern of racketeering activity in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c)
13 and that defendants Terada and Imai engaged in a conspiracy in violation 18
14 U.S.C. § 1962(d). The goal of these allegedly criminal activities was to defraud 15 plaintiff in regards to his ownership interest in Suwaso Corporation "by 16 overstating administrative and general expenses, overstating loans payments due,
17 and hiding or disguising unauthorized disbursements of funds by Imai to himself
18 and his cronies." First Amended Complaint, ¶ 31 (Jan. 18, 2000). Defendants 19 are also accused of "knowingly and willfully transport[ing] money...knowing 20 that such money had been taken by fraud." Id. at ¶ 33. Plaintiff alleges that the 21 sum of defendants' acts meets the "pattern of racketeering activity" requirement

1 of 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c). Plaintiff's second claim for relief alleges a conspiracy
2 between Terada and Imai to "conduct and participate directly and indirectly in 3 the affairs of the Suwaso Enterprise through a pattern of racketeering activity," 4 which included creation and submission of false representations as to the 5 amount of money used to benefit Suwaso Corporation, the creation and 6 submission of false books, records, loan documents, and financial reports, illegal
7 cash transfers out of the Commonwealth to Japan, and conversion of corporate 8 property to their own use, all in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1962(d). Id. at ¶¶ 41-

14 Given the uncontroverted affidavits¹ and overwhelming documentary
15 evidence placed before the court by defendants, combined with plaintiff's 16 inability to meet his burden of presenting plausible evidence to show a genuine 17 issue of material fact, and, more so, because the factual context makes plaintiff's 18 claim inherently and extremely unlikely, which required him to present "more 19 persuasive evidence than otherwise would be necessary to show that there is a

24 Defendants' motion to strike portions of the affidavits of Tim Goodwin, 25 Robert Campbell, and Goo Ho Cho was conceded by plaintiff to be well-taken support for plaintiff's opposition to the motion for summary judgment.

2 summary judgment is granted.

4 Findings of Fact²

5 1. Suwaso Corporation (“Suwaso”) was incorporated in 1985 to 6 construct, own, and operate Coral Ocean Point Resort Club, comprising a golf 7 course and country club.

9 2. Plaintiff, now deceased, was and remains a minority shareholder in 10 Suwaso. He initially owned ten percent of the corporation but his ownership 11 interest was later reduced, in documents he prepared, to 2.5 percent. (Plaintiff
12 conceded at oral argument that his ownership interest is now only 2.5 percent 13 and defendants acknowledged that plaintiff still owns a 2.5 percent interest in

19 The district court is not required to make findings of fact and conclusions
20 of law on a motion for summary judgment, but such findings and conclusions
21 are helpful to the reviewing court. See e.g. Underwager v. Channel 9 Australia, 22 69 F.3d 361, 366 n.4 (9th Cir. 1995), citing, Gaines v. Haughton, 645 F.2d 761, 23 768 n.13 (9th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1145, 102 S.Ct. 1006 (1982). Of 24 course, “findings of fact” on a summary judgment are not findings in the strict 25 sense that the trial judge has weighed the evidence and resolved disputed factual 26 issues; rather, they perform the narrow function of pinpointing for the reviewing court those facts which are undisputed and indicate the basis for summary judgment. All Hawaii Tours, Corp. v. Polynesian Cultural Center, 116 F.R.D. 645 (D.Haw. 1987), reversed on other grounds, 855 F.2d 860 (9th Cir.
1988).

1 the corporation.)

2 3. Defendant Hyakumata Corporation owns 90 percent of the shares and 3 defendant Terada owns the remainder. Hyakumata is the only shareholder who 4 paid for his shares of Suwaso stock and he was the sole financier of the Coral 5 Ocean Point project.

7 4. Plaintiff was the attorney for the corporation, both pre- and post-
8 incorporation, serving in that capacity from 1985 through 1997. He prepared 9 the articles of incorporation, was an original incorporator, an original 10 shareholder, an original corporate officer, a member of the initial board of 11 directors, and served as the corporation's registered agent. During the time
12 plaintiff served as corporate legal counsel, Suwaso leased the land for the Coral 13 Ocean Point project, which included a hotel, restaurant, golf course, and 14 supporting buildings. In addition to his ownership interest in the corporation, 15 plaintiff was paid $2,000.00 per month as a retainer for his legal services. This 16 sum was increased to $3,000.00 per month in 1994.
17

18 5. The exhibits entered in support of defendants' motion for summary 19 judgment show that during the time plaintiff was the corporation's legal 20 counsel, all financial details, including the loan information which is a vital 21
23

1 component of plaintiff's claims for relief, was disclosed in the corporate records, 2 annual reports, and corporate reports and tax returns filed with the 3 Commonwealth government. Presumptively, plaintiff had access to these 4 documents and more than likely prepared most of them. These documents
5 were reviewed by Deloitte, Touche & Tohmatsu, an independent international 6 accounting firm.

10 6. As the corporation's legal counsel, a director and corporate officer, as 11 well as a shareholder, plaintiff had, or certainly should have had, personal,
12 direct, timely, and unrestricted knowledge of all aspects of the corporation's 13 operations, including the financing.
14

15 Conclusions of Law

16

17 1. The court has federal question jurisdiction pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §
18 1331, diversity jurisdiction pursuant 18 U.S.C. § 1332, and supplemental 19 jurisdiction pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1367.
20

21 2. The court has personal jurisdiction over all the parties.

22
23 3. Venue is proper in this court in that all defendants reside in, can be 24 found in, have agents in, and/or transact or have transacted business within this 25 judicial district.
26

1 4. The elements of a civil RICO action are: (1) conduct, (2) of an 2 enterprise, (3) through a pattern, (4) of racketeering activity (i.e. a pattern of 3 predicate acts), (5) causing injury to plaintiff's business or property. Grimmett
4 v. Brown, 75 F.3d 506, 510 (9th Cir. 1996), citing 18 U.S.C. §§ 1962(c), 1964(c),
5 and Sedima S.P.R.L. v. Imrex Co., 473 U.S. 479, 496, 105 S.Ct. 3275, 3284-85 6 (1985).

7 5. None of the elements of a civil RICO action have been shown to exist
8 by plaintiff. Plaintiff failed to meet his burden of presenting credible, plausible, 9 direct evidence in opposition to the affidavits and exhibits presented by 10 defendants in their motion for summary judgment on the RICO claims.
11 Matsushita Electrical, 475 U.S. at 586. All of the documentary evidence 12 presented supported defendants' assertions; plaintiff's submissions were simply 13 unsupported suppositions, amorphous expressions of doubt, and 14 unsubstantiated statements. Plaintiff presented nothing to raise a sufficient 15 disagreement to require submission to a jury; the evidence was so 16 overwhelmingly one-sided in favor of defendants on the RICO claims for relief
17 that they must prevail as a matter of law. Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Stanewich, 142
18 F.3d at 1149 n.4, quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. at 250-252,

1 106 S.Ct. at 2511-12 (1986).³

2 FOR THE FOREGOING REASONS, defendants' motion for summary
3 judgment on plaintiff's two RICO claims for relief is granted and those claims 4 are dismissed with prejudice. The court defers ruling on whether or not it will 5 retain supplemental jurisdiction over the common law claims.

19 Although not a basis for the court's decision on this summary judgment
20 motion, the court notes that plaintiff appears to be stymied by the RICO statute 21 of limitations. In the Ninth Circuit, the four-year civil RICO statute of 22 limitations begins to run "when a plaintiff knows or should know of the injury 23 which is the basis for the action." Stitt v. Williams, 919 F.2d 516, 525 (9th Cir.
24 1990). Here, due to plaintiff's intimate and active participation in the affairs of 25 the corporation as shareholder, director, officer, and legal counsel, and further 26 due to his role in the preparation of many of the legal documents of the corporation, he knew or should have known well before November 30, 1995 (the date four years prior to the filing of this lawsuit), of the malfeasance he now alleges.
